PREFACE

AFTER some delay owing to the difficulties of war time and the restrictions upon the supply of paper it is possible to respond to the numerous requests for an index in continuation of the Consolidated Index to the first twenty volumes of the current series of the Journal. This forms a quinquennial supplement covering the Journals published during the years 1939 to 1943.

The plan of the previous Index has been followed as a convenience to users, though it is noticeable that the space allocated to various subjects has varied, especially in regard to different parts of the British Commonwealth and Empire.

This Index does not include the review of legislation, which each year has its own separate index.

The stock of the volumes covered by the Index suffered from enemy action, so that the Index may assist subscribers whose sets were rendered incomplete through the same cause. It enables students to ascertain where information can be found, such as the series of articles on the legislation of the exiled Governments.

The names of the authors of articles are given in small capitals and the titles of books noticed in the reviews are printed in italics. Where an entry shows the first and last pages it denotes that a whole article is devoted to the subject.
